Director of Human Resources
IBM

Dear Human Resources Manager:

I am excited to submit my application for the Design Intern position at IBM. I am confident that my qualifications for this position merit your consideration.

I have a Master's Degree in Information Science at Cornell University and strong capabilities in the development and implementation of successful user experiences with the products. This degree at Cornell University has provided me with a strong background in HCI, it has also given me the opportunity to demonstrate my abilities through practical project experiences. In these projects, I connected with real users and designed practical products for them with user-centered design technologies. I am also enthusiastic about design thinking and love to apply it to my practices. I am skilled at many design tools. Sketch, Invision, Photoshop, Principle are my primary design tools. I would also like to highlight my internship experience last summer in Raven Tech which is a technology startup in China focuses on artificial intelligence. I cooperated with design team seamlessly building a new product for the company. Active involvement in user research, need analysis, and product prototype design helped me gain hands-on experience.

I have a Bachelor's Degree in E-commerce engineering which gives me a more comprehensive perspective when understanding user and building prototype. My background helps me work well in an interdisciplinary team. I regard myself as a T-shape person, with deep understanding and rich practice in UX design, also have knowledge of programming and design technology.

I believe in the positive side of technology, which enables impossible possible. I think this will be a precious opportunity for me to find myself in the future career, to learn, and to devote my passion. Please contact me at (607)379-7462 or jf734@cornell.edu, if there is anything you want to know about me. Looking forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

Jiaming Fu
